

SHERMAN'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

As a nation our duty compels that by every constitutional and reasonable means the material and educational condition of the colored race be advanced. This we owe to ourselves as well as to them. As the result of a course of events that can never be reversed they are a part of our civilization; their prosperity is our prosperity; their betterment would be our enrichment. The Republican party therefore offers every constitutional means— thrift, industry and impudence that will better their prospects of higher attainment.

Army and Navy as Peace Guaranty.
I believe in the maintenance of such an army, the upbuilding of such a navy as will be the guaranty of the protection of American citizens and American interests everywhere, and an ensue of peace.

Undermining the Revenue.
The tariff schedules as arranged by the Congress which passed the very effective Dingley bill produced ample revenues until, under the influence of the increasing pressure of the free-traders, commercial treaties attacking the source of revenue were consummated and confidence was undermined by incessant talk about tariff revision, which had a tendency to still further reduce receipts. The effect now being witnessed is merely a repetition of former experiences, which seem to point conclusively to the inevitableness of deficiencies and their attendant evils when the sources of revenue as small as by the advocates of free-trade.—San Francisco Chronicle

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the greatest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means as much to me for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public."

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

An Expensive Fire. She was a splendid servant, but she didn't know anything about gas to cook with, so he went to the kitchen with her to explain about the range. So that she could see how it was operated he lit each of the many burners. While still explaining a message called him from the kitchen and he left her saying, "I guess you will find that it will work all right now, Martha."

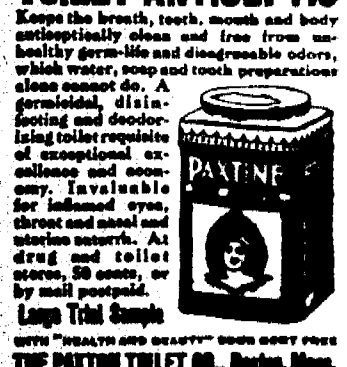

He didn't see the cook again for four or five days, then, upon entering the kitchen, he said, "Well, Martha, how's that range doing?"

To his utter consternation she replied:

"Deed, sir, that's the best stove I ever did see. That fire what you kindled for me four days ago is still burning, and it ain't even lowered soot."

After fifteen years of labor, Professor Brown, of Yale University, has completed a series of many thousands of minute observations by means of which he hopes to determine the exact position of the moon. The tantalum lamp is very desirable from the fact that it is of high efficiency. But it is not adapted for many of the fixtures at present in use, for the reason that it must hang vertically, whereas more often than not, the lamps in the existing fixtures hang at an angle. An adapter has been recently invented by which this discrepancy is overcome.

Kipling is a town which has just blossomed out in Canada, where there is only one town of Shakespeare. There is a Shakespeare in Kosciusko County, Indiana. However, the great English dramatist was never popular among the new-town miners in North America, although there are in the United States thirty Shakespeares, three Goldsmiths, four Dickensses, thirty-odd Scotts, twenty Byrons, two Tennysons and one Thackeray. But there is no Browning on the American map.

Every precocious boy does not become a brilliant man, but some brilliant men have been precocious in childhood. John Ruskin, the great English essayist and critic on art, was such a child. At the age of 7 he wrote verses in rhyme and kept a journal or diary. This journal was really a record of trips through England that he took with his father. His interest in the old cathedrals and in the bits of scenery that he saw during these journeys betrayed the talent that in later years decided his career.

"We Two" send the following to the London Express: "We are a young couple and at the present rate of salaries for bank clerks it will be eight, or even ten years before we can marry. As this is too far ahead to think of, and we have $200 ($1,000) between us, we are determined to strike out for ourselves, and at the thousands of breakfast tables all over England where the Express is daily read we would, with your kind permission, appeal for ideas as to the best way of making a good start."

With the recent return of the yacht Gallie, at San Francisco, the ocean magnetic survey work is closed for the present, until the construction of a vessel specially adapted for the work has been completed. Plans for the new vessel are now being prepared by Henry J. Gleason, naval architect and engineer. The Gallie was chartered by the Carnegie Institution, of Washington, and under the command of W. J. Peters, she was away nearly three years. The total length of the cruises traversed in the Pacific ocean during this period is about 65,000 miles.

The passing of the windmill in England, antiquated by such recent power producers as the gas engine and electric motor, has given life to a new industry—windmill wrecking. The old windmill builders understood their business and meant their handwork to last, and so the demolishing of such structures is no simple task. Many of the old mills stood 100 feet high and had eight or nine floors, fitted with four runs of stones, and capable of turning four times a minute. The stones were of great weight and the millwrights were not infrequently killed by the wreckers who did not have experience.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unknown to European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of burden, because they are more sure-footed than larger beasts, and the mountain paths among the foothills of the Himalayas are steep and difficult. The load for each sheep is from sixteen to twenty pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep haying on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

Several anchors have recently been made at the navy-yard at Charlestown, Mass., which are the largest ever made for any purpose. Four anchors are used on battleships generally, and the new anchors are being shipped in sets to the Pacific coast. One pair of this set of four weigh 17,000 pounds each. The largest anchors ever forged prior to these now being used weighed 10,500 pounds each and cost $24,000 each. They were also made at the Charlestown yard.

Each of the big anchors required the work of five men for a month, hammering, smelting and welding it. The mammoth anchors are sufficient for holding unusual conditions of weather and sea, to hold the largest battleship afloat. The size is fifteen feet long from crown to shackle, and about nine and one-half feet from crown to point to the flukes. The heavy crown is also about fifteen feet long, while the palm of broad, flat piece, welded to the arm ends, are about thirty-two inches wide.

HIGHEST PEAK IN CANADA

Two Men Will Try to Surmount the Snows of Mount Robson.

Two trained mountaineers of Canada, Dr. Coleman, the geologist of Toronto University, and Mr. Kinney of Victoria, B. C., will attempt to reach the top of Mount Robson this summer, says the New York Sun. It is a virgin peak. Mr. Kinney went to the mountain last year only to meet rain below and snow above in such quantities that he could not make the climb.

Mount Robson is one of the most inaccessible summits in North America. It stands a little west of the divide between waters going to the Arctic ocean and others flowing to the Pacific.

So far as is known it is the highest point in Canada. Its height was ascertained by the Canadian Geological Survey only about ten years ago. It is 13,700 feet above the sea, and rises 10,750 feet above the neighboring valley, but somehow it never impressed those who saw it with its tremendous elevation, nearly two miles above their standpoint.

It is in the center of scenery of remarkable grandeur. James McRoy of the Canadian geological survey explored this region in 1888 and said that the descriptions of Milton and Chaucer, written in 1385, had in no respect been overdrawn.

This is of interest to all tourists in America because this magnificent mountain region, now very hard to reach and impossible for the ordinary traveler to traverse, will before long be open to all. The route of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is now being extended westward from Edmonton, will be carried through the Yellow Head Pass and in the stretch where it will skirt the northern bank of the upper Fraser the trains will pass only a few miles south of the great mountain.

Mount Robson will be a hard proposition for the average mountaineer and its ascent will doubtless be left to experts, for it has a slope of 90 degrees practically from bases to summit. It is a glacier clad, very rugged, and its apex of ice, glittering in the morning sun, two miles in the air, is said to be one of the finest sights that mountains anywhere afford.

Flash-Skin Disease.

Ichthyosis—from the Greek word for fish—is the scientific name for a peculiar disease, or rather deformity of the skin characterized by an overgrowth of a horny, scaly layer and an abnormal dryness. It usually exists from birth, although a few cases of acquired fish-skin disease have been observed. Its cause is unknown. It often affects several members of the same family, and in many cases is evidently hereditary.

Although existing from birth, it may not be very marked in the infant, but may be little more than a roughness and unusual scalliness and dryness of the skin. It increases gradually, becoming very apparent by the third or fourth year, for six or eight years perhaps, and then its progress stops and it remains practically unchanged for life, although a slight improvement is sometimes noticed as the child approaches manhood or womanhood.

It varies with the seasons, being better in the summer—and better the hotter and moister the air is—and worse again in winter. The skin is also liable to inflammation in cold weather and clumps easily, giving rise to painful cracks over the knuckles and at the tips of the fingers. The nails are rough and often break and split, and the hair is also dry and frayed at the ends.

There are all degrees of the disease, from a simple, dry roughness and scalliness, to a condition in which the surface is covered with thick plates resembling the scales of a crocodile. In almost all cases there are more or less definite markings, especially over the exterior surfaces of the joints, resembling fish scales or a serpent's skin. The disease may occur in patches or in curved bands of varying width, with healthy or nearly healthy skin between, but most commonly it involves the entire surface, being least marked where the skin is naturally thin.

The treatment is mainly local, its object being to remove the excess of horny scales and keep the skin soft. Anointing the body at night with soft soap, followed by a warm bath and thorough rubbing with a coarse towel or a flesh-brush will, if often repeated, keep the scaling within limits. The free use of a good cream, borax and glycerin in water, lanolin or vaselin, applied immediately after the bath, and if necessary again in the morning, will go far to keep the skin soft and pliable. More severe cases will require more severe remedies, which should be used only under medical direction.

The Bribes that Failed.

Among Father Dempsey's steady boarders was a fellow named Delaney. He was drunk as often as he could get that way. Father Dempsey tried all manner of means to get Delaney to quit drinking. At last he said to him: "Delaney, my man, if you'll stop drinking for six months I'll give you a check at the end of that time for $50."

"Indeed, if I stopped for six months I could write you a check for $100," answered Delaney, and Father Dempsey in telling of it later added:

"And indeed he could, too, for he's a No. 1 mechanic."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Republican Choice for Vice President Told of Nomination by Senator Burrows.

ENDORSES TAFT PRINCIPLES

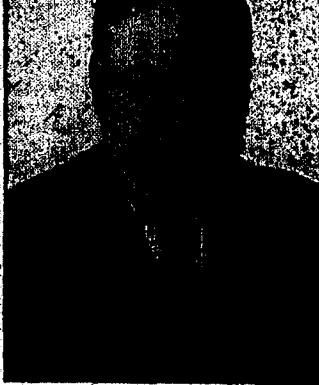

"Shall the Administration of Roosevelt Be Approved?" Declared Big Issues by Nominees.

Utica, N. Y., correspondence.

With one of the briefest speeches ever delivered by a candidate for so high an office, James Schuyler Sherman Tuesday accepted the nomination of the Republican party for the Vice Presidency. He spoke from a flag-covered stand erected in front of his home, and was surrounded by party leaders from different sections of the country.

and by an enthusiastic, non-partisan crowd of friends and fellow townsmen.

The nomination was tendered by a committee appointed at the Chicago convention in June, Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan being the chairman and spokesman. There were brief addresses also by Secretary of State Root, President M. W. Stryker of Hamilton College, from which Mr. Sherman was graduated; Mayor Thomas Wheeler of Utica, and Charles S. Symonds, chairman of the local reception committee.

Mr. Sherman followed the example of Mr. Taft in pledging allegiance to the policies of President Roosevelt. He declared there was no issue as to whether or not "the people shall rule."

Cast Aside Bryan Slogan.

"Surely the people shall rule," said Mr. Sherman; "surely the people have ruled, surely the people do rule."

Cast aside the campaign slogan raised by Mr. Bryan, the vice presidential nominee asserted that the "over-shadowing issue of the campaign really is: 'Shall the administration of President Roosevelt be approved?'"

Mr. Sherman made no attempt to discuss in detail any of the issues raised in the party platform, contenting himself with the declaration that he subscribed fully and heartily to all that had been written into the Chicago statement of principles and to all that had been said by Mr. Taft in his speech accepting the nomination.

Nature Smiles on Scene.

The day was clear and delightfully cool, and the local committee on arrangements was prepared to carry out in full the long outdoor program which the heavy rains the previous day threatened to curtail. Incoming trains in the morning brought throngs of visitors from the middle and western sections of the State, while the trolley cars from points as far west as Syracuse were crowded. Among the distinguished arrivals were Secretary Root, whose home is ten miles from Utica; National Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock, who came from Chicago, accompanied by several members of his staff, and State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff.

Cigarettes of a Year.

From the preliminary report of the commissioner of internal revenue it appears that there were smoked in this country last year cigarettes to the number of 55,492,330,113, not counting the little cigars. From the same report it is apparent that the consumption of spirituous liquors is on the decrease. On the other hand, the consumption of beer is increasing. During the fiscal year $131,739,242 was paid to the government on spirits, as compared with $147,550,281 the previous year. The decrease in liquors distilled was over 13,000,000 gallons. In the same time 58,747,080 barrels of beer were made, a gain of 201,000 barrels. Tobacco yielded a total revenue of $10,832,754, or a loss of nearly $2,000,000.

Highest Tower Good Advertising.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's new tower over the Madison Square building at New York, which is to be, when completed, the highest structure in the world, has received 8,749 newspaper clippings already containing some reference to the tower, and Frank A. Burrelle, the clipping expert, estimates that these clippings would make a total of 104,052 inches, or 1,400,928 feet long. To buy this amount of notice for the company at advertising rates would have cost $140,708.

Number of Failures Decreasing.

The commercial failures in the United States during July, as compiled by Dun's Review, were 1,232, with liabilities of $14,222,123, which is the lowest of any month in the past year, except May. Still it is being compared with the corresponding month of last year, when the total of failures reached only 777. Manufacturing failures last month were 314, against 211 in July, 1907. There were 871 trading failures against 281 such defaults in the same month of last year. The commercial failures in Canada were 134 against 141 in July of last year.

Several hundred thousand freight cars may be standing idle, as the railroad managers fearfully protest, but some Kansas grain dealers complain that they are unable to get box cars enough.

In the Circuit Court at Chicago Judge Kohlsaat enjoined the issuance of transportation by the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railway to the publishers of Munsey's Magazine in exchange for advertising. He held that the contract under which this transportation was issued is in violation of the Hepburn rate law. The railroad company gave notice of an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

At Helena, Mont., legal representatives of the government began suit against the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Rocky Fork Coal Company and the Northwestern Improvement Company to recover title to valuable coal lands which it is charged were procured through misrepresentation. The lands in question contain coal mines from which the railway obtains great quantities of coal through its control of the subsidiary companies.

Presumably due to the industrial depression of the past year, the death rate from accidents by rail appears to be on the decrease. The Accident Bulletin of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the third quarter of 1908 shows a total of 125 passengers and employees killed, as compared with 230 such deaths in the preceding quarter, and with 340 in the one before that. The latest record is the smallest since these statistics were first collected in 1901. During the first quarter of this year the number of deaths of passengers and employees from all causes was 728, against 1002 in the preceding quarter. In the same period the number of casualties was 15,441, the least within three years.

The right of shippers to combine small quantities of freight of various ownership, either by arrangement among themselves or by a forwarding agency, was confirmed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a decision recently rendered.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has published the final figures of the income of the railroads for the last fiscal year. The total net earnings amounted to $840,880,914, which is an increase of $24,000,530. The total number of employees on the payroll on June 30 was 1,072,074, against 1,521,335 a year ago.

The Erie railroad management has issued a statement to the public telling of improved business conditions. It says they have been adding to the force of employees and getting rolling stock ready for the fall crop-harvesting rush.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

LEGENDS OF THE NAVAJOES.

Famous Indians of the Far Southwest Have Curious Traditions.

Although the Navajo reservation adjoining the Mesa Verde National Park, where so many cliff dweller ruins are found, it is with difficulty that a Navajo can be induced to act as a guide to the ruins, says the San Francisco Chronicle. When one is found willing to show the way he cannot be induced to remain in the immediate vicinity, and when night comes on he moves miles away.

A curious tradition, and one accounting, perhaps, for their abhorrence of the cliff dwellers region, is that ages ago, when engaged in an exterminating warfare, the former were finally driven into a mighty river and drowning, the souls of the cliff dwellers were transmitted into the bodies of fishes. And from that time to this a Navajo cannot be induced to eat fish.

Another legend, no less curious, relates to the Ship rock. About thirty-five miles due west from Farmington, N. M., and situated in the midst of the desert, stands a famous rock called Ship rock, which looms to the height of 2,000 feet above the surrounding plain. It rises from the center of an immense and gradually sloping mound, which gives it a towering appearance and its outlines can be seen for many miles in various directions.

The rock derives its name from its appearance when seen from a certain direction stranded and petrified. The Indian legend is that in the dim and misty past they had their habitation in a distant land beyond the great ocean, and that the rock was situated in their ancient country. Once upon a time, the tribe being closely pressed by its enemies and in danger of total annihilation, the survivors climbed into the cracks and crevices of the great rock and implored it for protection. The supplications were heard and shortly the rock began to move. It crossed innumerable wastes, gradually reached the ocean, which it crossed, traversed more wastes and deserts and finally arrived at its present resting place, when the refugees sprang from its bosom. Thus the tribe remained upon the face of the earth.

China, a Collection of Nations.

China is not a nation in the sense in which we ordinarily use the word. If we picture to ourselves the countries of Europe, with their different languages and different customs, drawn together into a loose confederation under the government of a conquering race, we shall have some small conception of what this Chinese "nation" really is. The peoples of these different European countries are all Caucasians; the different peoples of China are all Mongolians. These Chinese peoples speak eighteen or twenty distinct languages, each divided into almost innumerable dialects and sub-dialects. They are governed by Manchus, or Tartars, conquerors who spring from a different stock, wear different costumes, and speak among themselves a language wholly different from any of the eighteen or twenty different native tongues.—Success Magazine.

A N. Y. woman writes an interesting letter. She says:

"Three years ago I suffered from an attack of peritonitis which left me in a most miserable condition. For over two years I suffered from nervousness, weak heart, shortness of breath, could not sleep, etc.

"My appetite was ravenous but I felt starved all the time. I had plenty of food but it did not nourish me because of intestinal indigestion. Medical treatment did not seem to help. I got discouraged, stopped medicine and did not care much whether I lived or died.

"One day a friend asked me why I didn't try Grape-Nuts, stop drinking coffee and use Postum. I had lost faith in everything, but to please my friends I began to use both and soon became very fond of them.

"It wasn't long before I got some strength, felt a decided change in my system, hope sprang up in my heart and slowly but surely I got better. I could sleep very well, the constant craving for food ceased and I have better health now than before the attack of peritonitis.

"My husband and I are still using Grape-Nuts and Postum." "There's a Reason."

I was truly in a frightful condition. At last I broke out all over with red and white spots, which kept growing with each day as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery, but I kept scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. I used Cuticura Soap, Cuticura, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. Hale, Bowdell, Tipton, Is. Governor Favors Publicity.

Governor Warner is still showing himself sincere in more ways than one in meeting the people's wishes. The measures he has advocated and sought to have made into law were backed by the Boxers in the last legislature, but the governor keeps persistently at it, and if he can have his way the people will get what they want in the next session of the legislature.

With Chairman Diekema of the republican state central committee, Governor Warner favors publicity in campaign contributions. St. Joseph Herald.

Revolutionize Industries.

The Commonwealth Power Co. is actively at work harnessing the waters of Au Sable river for the purpose of generating power to illuminate and move the industries of Bay City and other Saginaw valley cities.

It is asserted that sufficient power can be supplied by this source to operate every manufacturing industry in Bay City and those of all surrounding towns and also furnish illumination, and all at a much less cost than the users of electric power now pay.

Indeed, the people behind this enterprise do not hesitate to say that when this stream has been harnessed it will revolutionize electric power in the Saginaw valley.

Behind the Commonwealth Power Co. are H. M. Loud's Sons Co., and New York capitalists.

It will thus be understood that there will be no lack of capital in developing this project. Those behind it are practical men and with all the money necessary the work will be done effectively and in a first class way.

The realization of this project means much to the Saginaw Valley cities and towns.—Bay City Tribune

A Glimpse of the Tropics.

A striking feature of the Horticultural Department at the State Fair, this year, will be the exhibit of tropical fruit-bearing trees and foliage plants. Supt. L. R. Taft, of the department, says that oranges and lemons will be seen growing on the trees, along with luscious mangoes, sapodillas and pineapple plants in burlap, and dozens of other tropical fruits, and a wealth of tropical foliage.

The fruit display is one of unusual merit. This is owing to the appearance of many new exhibitors of prominence, and the holding of the fair a week later, which will improve the color and color of the specimens. Comparison between the products of a number of states will be afforded through the exhibits which have been promised from Ohio and New York.

Detroit will contribute rare and beautiful plants from its famous Belle Isle conservatory, and the florists of the city and vicinity will be on hand with an extensive display of greenhouse plants and cut flowers.

Ladies will be interested in the exhibit of canned fruits and vegetables, pickles and jellies, which promises to be of unusual excellence.

Bad Boys.

There is one very noticeable feature about boys that has been gained by observation and in many cases out of ten, these observations prove correct. Every town school has its "bad boys," generally not many, rarely less than three nor more than five. After their first two years, or they have passed the primary age, this troublesome disposition begins to crop out and they soon become the chief annoyance and though there are but one or two, they keep things in an uproar and almost ruin every good intent of the school. And thus they go on, forever taking teachers as to know what course to pursue. They forbear with them much, persuade not a little and try all means and methods to win them to a course of right, but it seems all in vain. Thus these boys put in a few years of school life and then away, but their course in the world is no better than when in school. These few "bad boys" become the annoyance of the town, and now the authorities are put to their "wits end" to know what to do with them. Parents, perhaps, highly respectable, honorable and among the best for their sakes much is foreborne—much overlooked; but these boys go right on despite pleading or warnings and next day they are before our courts—and next would be behind the bars but for the influence of friends and money.

Where is your boy today? Is he just at that stage of life that our first picture portrays? If you ever hope to reverse it do it now, for if it ever can be done this is the auspicious time, and in all probability by just and judicious means you will succeed and save yourself many a heart ache—many a tear, many a sleepless night and have the satisfaction of realizing in the future all the fond anticipations you have had concerning your boy.

Where is your boy today? Did you hope the picture portrayed at the beginning would reverse of its own accord and that in after years he would "earn reform" and grow up into all that was good and useful? You would indulge him now in every whim, hoping by and by he will in turn thank you for it and do your slightest bidding. Does he? Now, honestly, is not our picture true to life—our observations correct? They are portrayed right in our midst—they are portrayed everywhere, and, dear parents, we only bring the picture to you, hoping as you gaze on it and you realize its truth and correctness, it may prove a source of good—to you—to many.

Our Girls.

More practical training is needed. It should be the aim of all to give the girls just as broad a business education as the boys. It makes them capable of taking care of the family, if such responsibilities are placed upon them; it broadens their ideas and makes them nobler and better. Girls, as a rule, are fully as clear headed as boys when young, but if as in the common practice, girls are brought up to do nothing, to think but little, except of dress and amusement, they fall far behind of the young man, at the age of 20, in mental ability.

What is needed is, that at home and at school, they be taught that to shine in social circles or to roll in wealth is not the highest aim of womanhood. But let them be taught to make a home joyful and happy, and yet be prepared if necessary for life's bitterest struggles. Let them understand thoroughly the details of every-day life, the value of all kinds of commodities used daily, how to make a check, draft, note and receipt. Let them be told the truth about themselves and about the world. They should know something about the pitfalls and snares that beset them. Let them be thoroughly impressed with the fact that on themselves, in a large degree, depends the success of the man they marry. Let them know how to cook, giving them a thorough course in the kitchen. Let them begin where their mothers left off, and we shall have a generation of girls, strong, hopeful, ambitious and self-reliant, that will elevate the men, and make a harder and more aggressive people, and thousands of firesides happier and better.

What beautiful and tender associations cluster thick around that word! The thought of it is a very abiding: the name of it has a spell to call back the wanderer from the path of vice, and far away where the myrtle blooms and the palm trees wave, and the ocean sleeps upon coral strands, to the exiles fond fancy it clothes the naked rock, or stormy shore, or barren moor, or wild height and mountain with charms he weeps to think of and longs once more to see. Of all places on earth, home is the most delicate and sensitive. It chords move with a breath; its fires are kindled with a spark; its rudeness. Here our hearts wear no covering, no armor. Every arrow strikes them, every cold wave blows full upon them. If we would have a true home, we must guard well our thoughts and actions. A single bitter word may disquiet the home for a whole day, but like unexpected flowers which spring up along our path, full of freshness, fragrance and beauty, so do kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessings dwell. The heart will turn lovingly toward it from all the tumults of the world, and home, "be it ever so humble," will be the dearest spot under the sun.

Lost Children.

Children lost! lost! Harken to the startled cry. Children lost! Oh men, your cities are full of them; and they are your children, your own tender little ones; mothers, the babies that lay in smiling innocence upon your bosoms; the dear, brave boys that looked up to you in perfect confidence and warm impulse love. Your homes are lonely without them, your hearts are hungry for their love. Oh, you miss them now; the darlings of other years; you want the little hands in your own once more; you want the warm kiss upon your aching brow. But life hurries on, and lost! lost! ever rings through the darkened aisles of time. One by one the drunkard's graves yawn wide and somebody's darling is gone. The midnight revel and the gambling den covers its ghastly dead, and the homes are in sackcloth and sorrow sits a familiar guest by many a hearthstone. Brave, beloved boys, noble men, fair browed maidens and mature womanhood. Oh, how they fall and perish; and the lands are full of "Rachels, weeping for their children who will not be comforted because they are not."

Dr. Underhill is putting the material on the ground for a house and barn for his tenant. He is also having a fire place built in his mansion. The work is being done by a mason from Saginaw.

A little rain would be acceptable, as we have not had any since the 11th.

Mrs. Jennie Nellis of Syracuse, N. Y. is the guest of Mrs. Underhill. Mrs. Nellis is a lady of means, and we believe her good judgement will induce her to invest in real estate here and raise clover.

Your Child's Eye Sight

You are responsible for the sight of your child. Watch out for frowns, for squints, and when he reads or looks at a picture book does he hold it to near or too far? These little things grow faster than the child and in many cases can be overcome if discovered in time.

At Muskegon, last week, in a decision handed down in the circuit court by Judge Sessions, the Muskegon Log Lifting & operating Co. is restrained from using the shore bordering the Muskegon river for drying timber raised from the bottom. The case was brought by Robert T. Lane, a landowner along the water front. The finding of Judge Sessions was awaited with much interest both by land owners along the river and by lumbermen. It was a test case, which means considerable to the log lifting companies now operating for 100 miles up and down the Muskegon river, and other waterways in Michigan. About a month ago the supreme court decided against the farmers when they sought to restrain the logging companies from claiming the sunken timber relics of the days when lumbering was at its best in Michigan. The court contended that the companies had as much right to the timber as the farmers. When the case went against them on that point they instituted the present proceedings. The decision may serve to tip the entire business on the river, as drying beds are not to be found elsewhere.

Grayling fans again watched their home team split a couple of games. Gatelys of Saginaw taking the Saturday game in a very loosely played game on the part of our boys, while Saginaw's representatives played ball all the time. Bowman for Grayling pitched a good game, but the absence of any support by the team accounted for the many runs chalked up in Saginaw's favor. Score—Grayling 2, Saginaw 11. In the second game there was an entirely different story and the boys played ball in much the same manner as they say they discuss it on the street, and with good support Johnson for Grayling won out in a closely contested 11 inning battle which to the spectators proved the most interesting game of the season with the exception of the last part of the job running when a crowd upon special invitation proceeded to occupy the grounds making it impossible for the boys to play ball, and by acts of rowdism and hooliganism made themselves appear more as a bunch of hoodlums than civilized individuals. Such acts must be stopped by the management, else the reputation of Grayling as a clean base ball town will be jeopardized. We must win and have no question raised but that every thing was on the square. Score Grayling 4, Saginaw 2.

Directions for Operating.

On discovering a fire, go to the nearest box, break the glass, and turn the crank to the right once around till it stops. This gives a general alarm followed by the number of the box, which is repeated four times, that all may know the locality of the fire. Thus, if the alarm is given from box No. 32, after the general alarm the gong and the whistle at the mill the same, will strike 3 times then a pause, then 3 strokes. If the alarm is from No. 19 the gong will strike 1—then nine times, and so of each box, the number of strokes of the first figure, a pause and the number of the second figure. In case a wire in the system should become broken, the gong will give a single stroke, which if not repeated, will tell its own story.

Until the department is satisfied that everything is correct, a trial will be made from four different boxes at 8 p. m. Watch for it and become familiar with the different calls, and study above, card copies of which will be given out, that all may know the location of every call.

There is much misunderstanding as to enrollment. Many voters have the idea that if they are registered it is all that is necessary but such is not the fact. All who did not enroll two years ago must do so on Aug. 29, or they can not vote at the primaries on Sept. 1. It is stated that there are scores of voters in the state who are not enrolled.

That confounded boy! Of course he's a regular nuisance with all his noise and confusion. But the baby likes him and so does the dog, even if he does pull his tail and cut his ears; and he is willing to do anything in the world for you if you ask him in the right way. We guess you'd be pretty lonesome without him. Put the brake on your irritable nerves and try to reabsorb a little more of the boy's devil-may-care elixir. It is better than any artificial nerve tonic. Put your nerves in tune with your boy's racket and you'll feel a whole lot better.

Conundrum. Why is the village without street lights, especially on Sunday nights, when all the people are returning from church, and it is dark as it was last Sunday evening, where the walks could not be seen except in front of lighted windows? It seems to us to be more desirable to have the streets lighted in the evening returning same day.

POOR GIRL, HEIR TO MILLIONS.

Restaurant Cashed Entitled to Part of $50,000,000.

Miss Florence D. Singleton, cashier in a restaurant on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, has received word that she is one of the heirs of Joseph Ball, a Revolutionary soldier, whose estate is said to have accumulated until it amounts to $50,000,000. "This seems altogether too good to be true, of course," said Miss Singleton. "In fact, I do not even know my great-grandfather's name. What would I do with a few million dollars? Well, I will be time enough to talk about that when I find some evidence that the money is coming my way." The Ball estate is said to comprise now $1,850,000 in cash and some 5,250 acres of land, containing iron, in Meadville, Pa., and other towns in Pennsylvania and the Carolinas, Kentucky and Virginia.

RAT POISON IN THE DOUGH.

Mother Makes Fatal Mistake in the Kitchen—Child First to Succumb.

Walter Starkey, his wife, and two children of Groveport, near Columbus, Ohio, were accidentally poisoned. One child is dead and the parents and the other child are reported dying. The poisoning was due to a mistake said to have been made by Mrs. Starkey in mixing arsenic with dough while making potato. She picked up a can which she thought contained baking soda, but instead it contained a preparation of arsenic made to poison rats. The family became ill at dinner, and Mr. Starkey with difficulty reached the sidewalk and summoned help. One of the children died during the afternoon.

This is the first surplus the company has shown since it took over the lines. The deficit for June was $23,829 and for May $54,910.

PAY ROLLS GROWING PATTERN.

Labor Getting Scarce and Wages Are Mounting Higher.

The pay roll in the mills, furnaces, coke plants and coal mines of the various companies clearing through Pittsburgh banks was the largest recently of any day during the last week of the New York Press. The increase, while gradual and steady, is not phenomenal, yet every business man is satisfied that it is drawing nearer to the figures tallied last year during the most prosperous months. "For instance, the pay roll at the National Tube Works, McKeesport, where 5,500 men are now employed, amounted to almost $250,000 for the last week. The pay roll at the Homestead steel works of the Carnegie Steel Company is within 10 per cent of what it was last summer. That of the Edgar Thompson and Duquesne steel works is only 5 per cent of last year. The Pittsburgh Steel Company, however, has almost as large a force at work as it ever had. The pay roll of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and that of independent coke producers has increased 50 per cent within the last three months from what it was during the winter, and it is predicted that by September it will be increased fully 30 per cent more. The coal mining companies of this district, the largest in the world, are paying within 90 per cent of the wages paid any time in the coal industry existence, which means that fully $50,000 a day is being expended in wages for coal mining from Pittsburgh alone. This does not include the vast operations in West Virginia, especially at Fairmont, which are alive with activity, nor the Jefferson Clearfield County fields, nor those of Cambria and Indiana or Westmoreland Counties, which ship their products to tide-water.

HONESTY OUTWEIGHS HUNGER.

Fearless Men Find Woman's Lost Fortune and Return It.

Mary Vitella appeared at central station in Pittsburgh the other day and distractedly announced that she had lost her hand satchel, containing the savings of many years, two $50 notes, a bank book showing $800 deposits, a passport and a ticket to Italy. She intended to sail in a day or two, and was frantic over her misfortune, declaring that if the money could not be found she would drown herself. A few minutes later B. R. Burgoon and E. J. Carter entered the station and handed the satchel to Sergeant Charles Lanker. The men explained that they had been in the postoffice and had found the satchel on a desk, where it had been left by the owner after writing a letter to her friends. The finders of the money said they were both hungry, out of money and looking for work, but concluded that money was needed the more money than they did had lost it, and so turned it over to the police. Later the owner received it with tears of joy and insisted on rewarding the finders with a present of $50.

BURIED HIS LIVING FATHER.

Tiring of carrying his grandchild, Samuel Reed, aged 45, tried to shift his burden to his son, Rover W. Reed, aged 27, his father, while they were walking to Tyrone, Pa., and a quarrel between the two followed. The son struck the father on the head with a stone, knocking him down the bank of a river. When he found the old man bleeding from the nose, mouth, ears and eyes, he thought he had killed him, and to conceal the crime, buried him under sand and leaves. Some hours later the old man recovered consciousness and crept from his grave. He came to Altoona, reported the assault to the police, and they are looking for Rover.

LOST CHILD BELIEVED KIDNAPED

Four-Year-Old Son of Arcene Farmer Missing.

Missing from home and at first believed to have strayed into the woods and become lost, the little four-year-old son of James Oates, a farmer living about four miles from Au Gres, in an isolated section of Arenac County, is, after a several days' search of the wilderness, believed to have been kidnaped, because of the child's unusual deformity. The child was born with only one arm and that deformed in an unfortunate manner while his other shoulder is forked in a most singular shape. Aside from these defects the child is healthy and has always taken a lively interest in life. It was while at play with his little brother and sister near the house, the parents being busy in the field, that the lad suddenly disappeared.

FORCED TO BE A CANDIDATE.

W. N. Ferris' Name Goes on Primary Ballot Despite Opposition.

In reply to a letter from Woodbridge, N. Ferris of Big Rapids, directing him to disregard any and all petitions to have the name of Mr. Ferris entered on the primary election ballots as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Secretary of State Prescott has informed Mr. Ferris that the latter's own preference in the matter cannot be consulted. Mr. Ferris, who is a school teacher, was the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1904. The refusal of Secretary of State Prescott to grant his request raises the possibility of Mr. Ferris' name going on the primary election ballot entirely against his own wishes.

Roberts has been drinking and was despondent. He had threatened to do away with himself, but nothing was thought of it. He left his home early in the morning, taking his razor, the butcher knife and a wheel stone. After shaving himself he deliberately sharpened the butcher knife and plunged it upward into his throat, but missed the jugular vein. He was nearly dead from loss of blood when found. Roberts is about 31 years old and has a wife and one child.

The numerous conical projections are exceptionally well formed, and are coated with an eight to ten inch layer of iron ore. The next largest amethyst of which there is record is one in the Central Park Museum in New York City. It weighs 130 pounds.

WOMAN DEAD; TWENTY HURT.

Boiler Blows Up on Passenger Boat on Carp Lake.

Mrs. Isabel La Bonte of Traverse City was killed and a score of passengers were injured by the explosion of the boiler of the passenger steamer Leelanau, bound from Leelanau to Carp Lake. Having on board many pleasure seekers bound for Traverse City to attend a week-end cruise, the little steamer was plowing down the narrow lake with a steam pressure of eighty pounds. As she was passing through the engineer discovered a loose bolt in the engine and shut off the steam to remedy the defect. It was while he was working at the loose bolt that the explosion occurred. The boiler gave way with a crash, tearing off the top of the engine and demolishing the pilot house and the forward upper works of the steamer, but leaving Eugene's engine room untouched by the havoc that swept before him. The force of the explosion had all been directed forward. Mrs. La Bonte, sitting near the pilot house, was blown far out into the water, terribly mangled, and John Hartung, who was at the wheel, was probably fatally injured. All those injured were sitting in the forward part of the boat. Many were thrown into the water and clung to the wreckage until rescued by farmers living along the shore, although some were able to swim to shore.

OLD MAN'S SPECTACULAR EXIT.

Watches Cash Burn, Then Hangs Himself at Age of 83.

Edison Burr, a wealthy farmer, living six miles north of Romeo, burned $4,500 in currency and his $20,000 farm residence calmly watching the conflagration. Burr expressed to condoling friends no regret at his loss. Previously he had sent his wife to Almont and it is said that $10,000 of the currency belonged to her. It is alleged that Burr went to the bank and drew $3,500, taking this home and placing it beside another roll of $1,000. He deliberately set the house on fire. Afterwards he went across into Macomb county and slept in his tenant's house. Rising early in the morning Burr repaired to a shed and there hung himself. He was 83 years old.

STATE STATISTICS OF CRIME.

Figures of Prison Population that Furnish Food for Thought.

A bulletin issued by the Census Bureau contains some statistics of the prison population of the country that are startlingly suggestive, says the Indianapolis News. The statistics are of June 30, 1904, when the total population of the country was estimated to be 81,801,848. At that time the country had 1,337 penal institutions, including four United States civil prisons, sixty-seven State prisons and State and county penitentiaries, fourteen reformatories for adults, seventy-one municipal prisons and workhouses and 1,181 county jails. At the date named these various prisons contained 81,772 inmates, an average of 100.6 per 100,000 of population. The average seems appealingly large, but it shows an improvement over 1890, when it was 131.5 per 100,000 of population.

There is some consolation in the fact that, appalling as the aggregate of crime appears, the percentage of criminals to population is not increasing. This might be due to remission in the enforcement of law, but we are at least permitted to hope that it is not the case, the moral trend of the times being toward stricter instead of laxer enforcement of law.

It appears that of the total number of prison inmates on June 30, 1904, 77,200, or 94.4 per cent, were males, and 4,572, or 5.6 per cent, were females. As there is no great difference in the number of males and females in the country, the figures indicate clearly that crime is much more prevalent among men than among women.

On June 24, 1904, there were in the United States ninety-three institutions for juvenile delinquents between the ages of 7 and 21 years. These institutions, included reformatories, reform schools, training schools—in fact, all kinds of prisons, places of detention and religious agencies for juvenile delinquents. At the date named they contained 23,034 inmates, of whom 2,393 were in the Catholic protectorate

The Hoop That Rolled Uphill

By Don Mark Lemon

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

"Haven't you ever investigated it?"

"No, can't say that I ever did."

"Well, you're a singular sort of man to have a phenomenon like that occurring under your eyes every day, and not investigate it."

"I dunno, maybe so."

"I ain't any one in these parts ever investigated it."

"Well, now, since you ask, Pearson's boy—right promisin' sort of a lad was Jeff—he did kind o' lay in wait for the pesky hoop one evening long-side yonder rock, half way up the hill."

"When was this?"

"About last May, ef I recollect."

"And what happened? What did he find out?"

"Well, now, p'raps he found out something and p'raps he didn't. Can't say."

"Can't say? Why not?"

"Well—you see—Jeff, he never spoke no more after that pesky hoop came a-rollin' up to where he was waitin' long-side o' the rock. Jest threw up his hands an' came a-runnin' down the hill ahead o' the hoop like he was bein' chased by some sort o' devil or 'nother, an' hid himself away in the o' straw stack over there."

"Singular!"

"Yees, ef it was sort o' singular. An' when me an' his father dug him out o' the stack, he was plumb daff, an' he ain't ever spoke since then. But I dunno whether it was something about the pesky black hoop that did it, or whether he was sort o' struck by the 'chance' as he got up in front o' the hill to get a good look at the hoop, an' you see, it was durin' a 'lectric storm that Jeff lay in wait up there on the hill, an' me an' his father was walkin' down here about what a big fool he was, when we saw a streak o' lightning hit the rock whar he was waitin', an' then Jeff came a-tumblin' down the hill in front o' the pesky hoop, an' hid in the o' straw stack."

"Did any one, after that, attempt to get a close view of the hoop?"

"Not that I know of. Pearson's boy's trouble has kind o' scared everybody away, an' we jest let the hoop roll an' keep out of its road. We're generally o' the opinion hereabouts that the devil's business ain't none o' ours."

With this rural philosophy, the old farmer turned and went into the farmhouse, leaving the tourist with whom he had been conversing standing very much perplexed, gazing off at the skyline of a long slope that began among a clump of trees about a quarter of a mile away and ended at the bank of the river that wound by the old farmer's domain.

Every evening at sundown for almost a year past a black hoop about four feet in diameter had been seen to appear on the skyline of this slope at a distance of some 40 feet from the clump of trees at the top, and roll rapidly down the incline, to vanish like an apparition within a short distance of the river below.

What this mysterious black hoop was, no one knew; and since Jeff Pearson's misfortune no one had attempted to investigate the phenomenon. The old farmer had even advised the tourist to leave the matter severely alone; but James Moor was determined to investigate for himself, and he started off towards the slope, when suddenly, from a point about 40 feet below the clump of trees at the top of the incline, the black hoop—appearing as unaccountably as it had drawn out of thin air—began its usual evening descent, just as if a thick barrel hoop, lying flat high up on the slope, had suddenly erected itself from the short grass and began to roll down the hill. Only when this mysterious black wheel had arrived within 20 feet of the river below, it vanished as suddenly and as strangely as it had come.

Three times before James Moor had witnessed this remarkable phenomenon, but he was not less amazed at witnessing it for the fourth time. In fact, the thing grew more uncanny as each successive occurrence, and the tourist felt almost grateful that he had not met with the hoop in its descent. If he had, he might now be hiding in the old farmer's straw stack!

Yet, now that the phenomenon was over for the day, he could safely investigate the track of the black hoop. So, setting off, James Moor climbed to the top of the slope and carefully examined that particular spot where the apparition always made its appearance, but he discovered nothing unusual in the ground thereabout, it being like all the rest of the uncultivated and in those parts—covered with short grass, with a few pebbles and stones scattered about, and here and there a gopher or squirrel hole.

Slowly and painstakingly he made his way down the incline in the late track of the mysterious circle, ending his investigation at the bank of the river near which the apparition had suddenly faded into nothing—and ending in vain, for the nature of the manifestation remained as profound a mystery as before, and as uncanny.

Returning to the farmhouse, he fell into a deep meditation about the matter; after which he dropped asleep, to dream that the black hoop was made of smoke, and was howled every evening down the slope by an invisible fiend, who invisibly vanished at the river's bank, leaving the hoop with him, into a nice, clean hole in the air.

The next evening James Moor, as he went near the foot of the incline, IMMENSE SUM EXPENDED IN AMERICA FOR PREVIOUS STONES.

While the importations of precious stones and pearls have been increasing by leaps and bounds in the last two years, as indicated by the reports given out at the port of New York from time to time, there will be some surprise at the announcement that the total value of these importations in the past fiscal year, ended June 30, has been far ahead of all preceding records, amounting to $10,217,500.

The June importations at this port exceed in value those of the corresponding month of last year by a margin of nearly $400,000.

The nearest approach to the splendid total of the fiscal year now closed was made by the figures for the calendar year ended December 31 last, the aggregate for that period being $37,146,337. It will be seen, therefore, that the fiscal year exceeds the calendar year by over $4,000,000.

Comparisons with preceding fiscal years will indicate the extent of the increase in the consumption of precious stones by the American dealers. The largest total since the records of the port have been kept until the present year was made by the previous 12 months, when the figures were $13,223,161.

June 30, 1903, was considered marvellous in its day, the value of the imports being $27,318,042. There was a decline in the year ended June 30, 1904, and then began the upward movement, which has since continued.

AS THE DOCTOR HAD ORDERED.

Patient Felt Bound to Take Alcohol Stimulant Directed.

Capt. George H. Knox, the richest officer in the United States army, is an advocate of temperance. At Fort McIntosh, in a talk with some privates, he said recently:

"Of course, if men want to drink, they can always find some excuse for drinking."

"I once knew a New York man who drank entirely too much. His doctor, in order to moderate his drinking, a little, ordered him to take more light beer and less strong wine—to every quart of beer not more than a pint of wine at the outside."

"The patient said to me one evening a week afterward, as he rang for a bottle of champagne:

"What a bore! I've drunk eight glasses of beer to-day, and now I've got to get away with four glasses of wine. Doctor's orders!"
